Let's ask Google a question from your category

(watch the sources)

Look at what Google trusts here

That's the whole talk in one screen.

Proof: my videos in AI Overviews

("bizplanr review" · "track my visibility review" · a category search)

05

Two kinds of videos that got cited

1

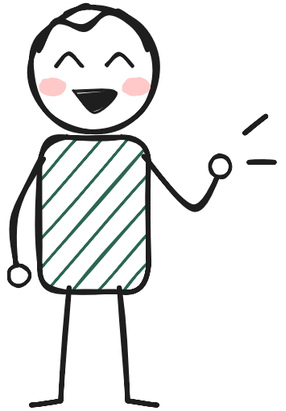

An honest review
of your product

shows up when people
search your name

A better version of what's there

shows up for
category searches

06

Short-form counts too

Even a short with few views is a signal you're an authority.

People now ask four places

Today: Google AI Overviews. It answers before anyone clicks.

Your brand name isn't yours anymore

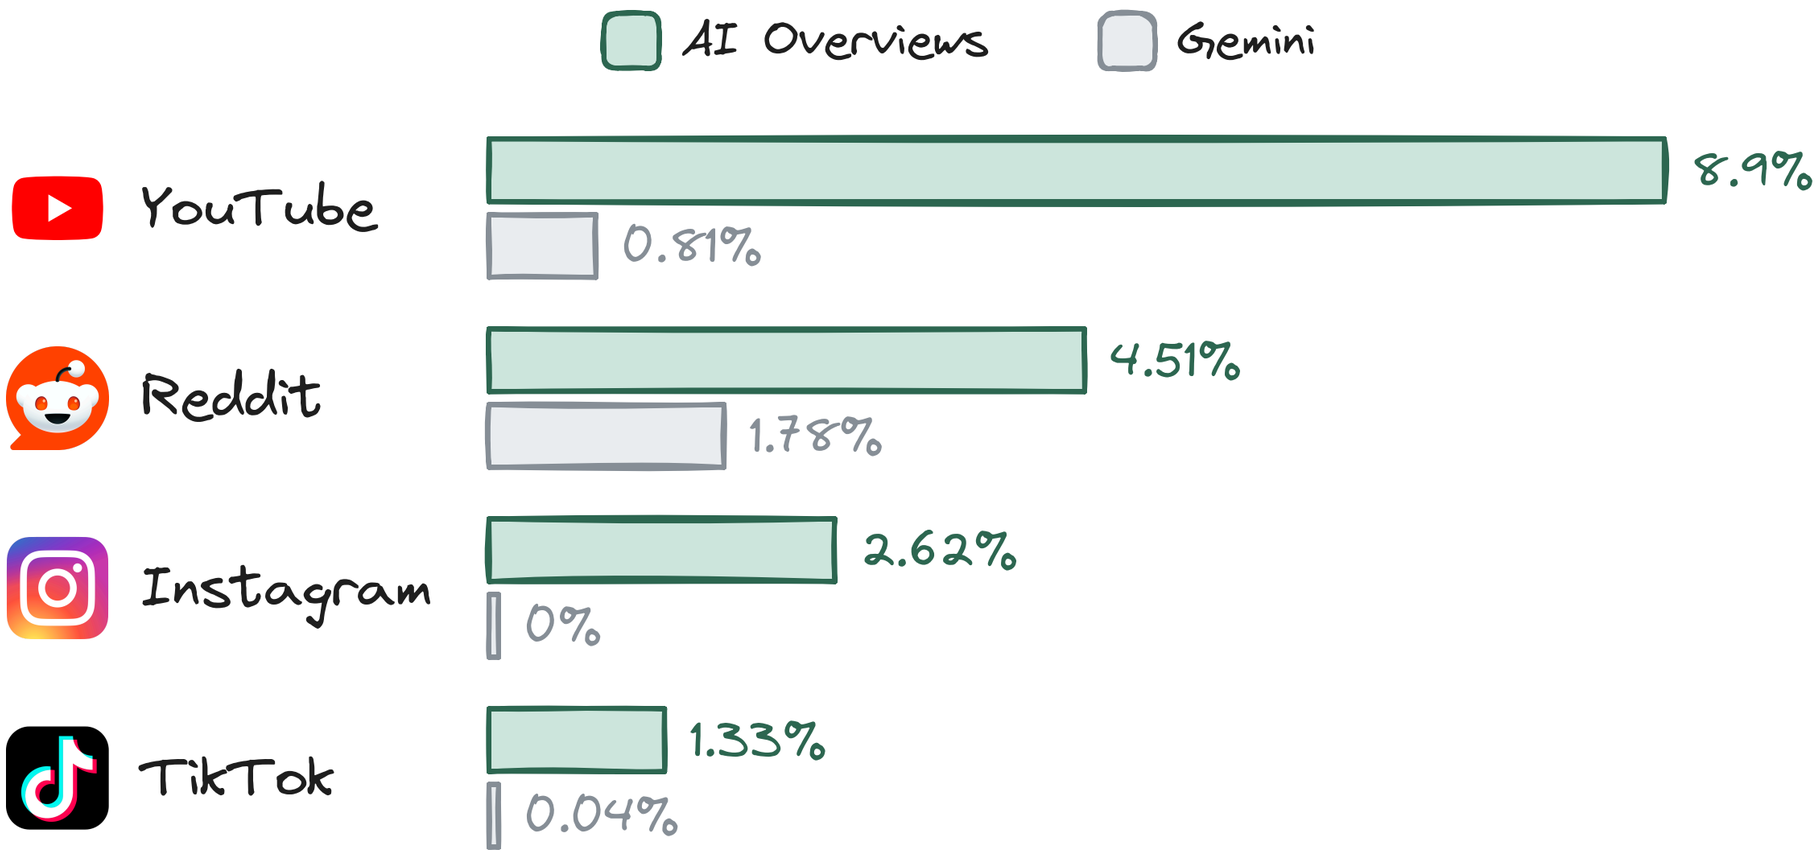

(let's search Jira and ClickUp)

83%

of US branded searches show an AI Overview

Ahrefs (Ryan Law), Oct 2026

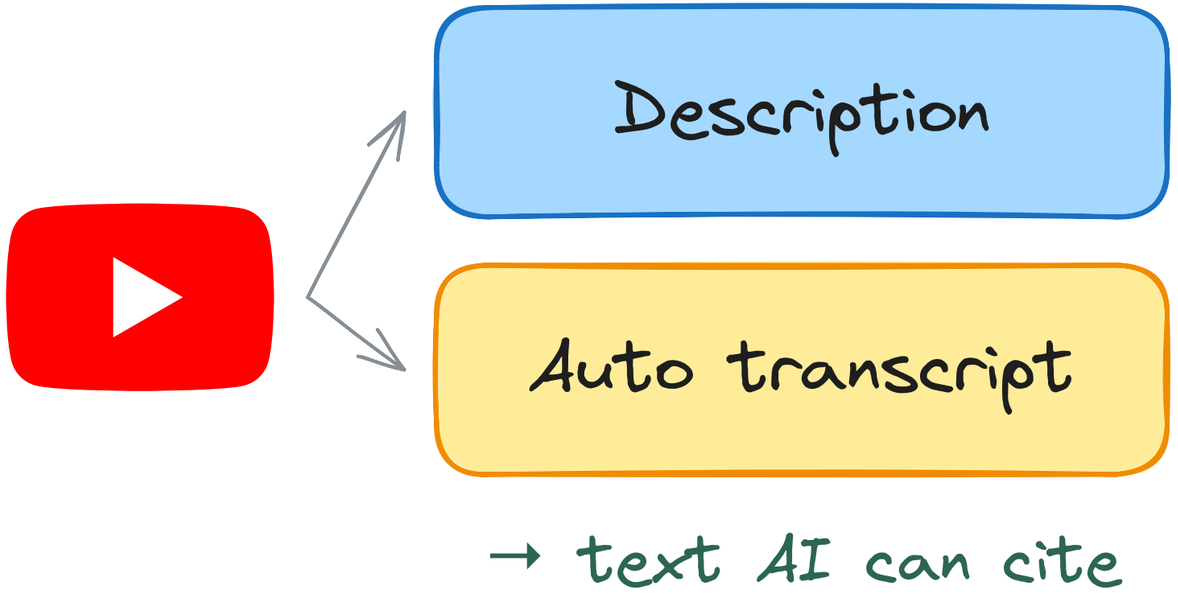

AI Overviews cite social 7.5× more than Gemini

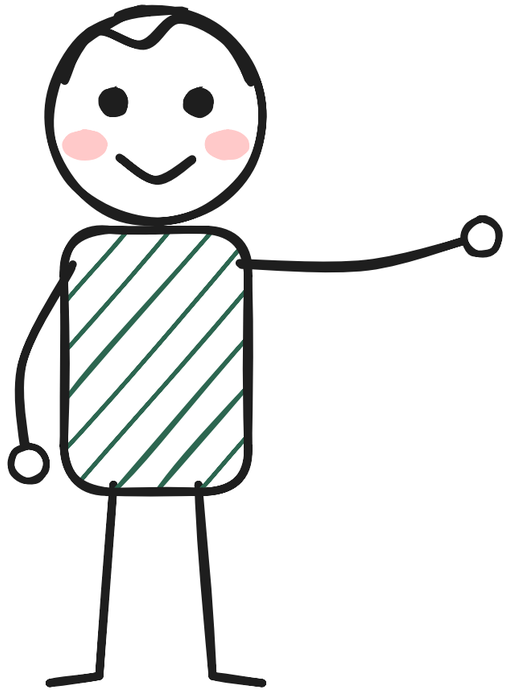

share of citations · Track My Visibility study, 383,188 citations

AI can now read your videos

What you say out loud becomes text it can cite.

You don't control what AI says about you. You control what evidence exists.

How to find what to make

1. Your tracked prompts

2. Sources tab

3. Filter by YouTube

The free version

Try more than one angle: tools, use cases, comparisons, clips.

1. Write down your keywords + questions
2. Search each one
3. Look at the videos the Overview cites
4. Can you make a better one?

The basics still work

1

The exact question

in the title + description

2

Keywords in captions

not hashtags

3

Say it out loud

then check the transcript

4

A/B test titles

on YouTube

Search Console now takes your social accounts

Since July 2026. Google is telling you social is part of search.

The 90-day playbook

1

Days 1–30

find which channel gets cited in your niche

2

Days 31–60

make the better version + clips

3

Days 61–90

re-check citations, double down

the metric to watch: citations, not views

One thing to do this week

1. Pick 10 questions your customers ask
2. Search them
3. See who's getting cited
4. Make something better

Do that for 90 days.
AI will know who you are.

Thank you.
