How to stay human in the age of AI

(7 slow habits, on purpose)

AI is great. I use it every day.

I just don't want it doing my thinking.

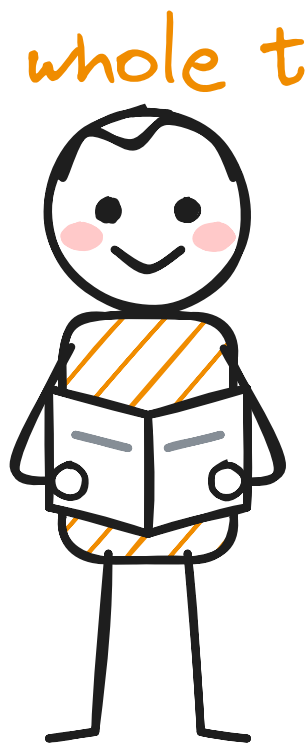

1

Read something long

The summary gives you the point. Not the thinking.

Summarise this book in 3 lines

the whole thing

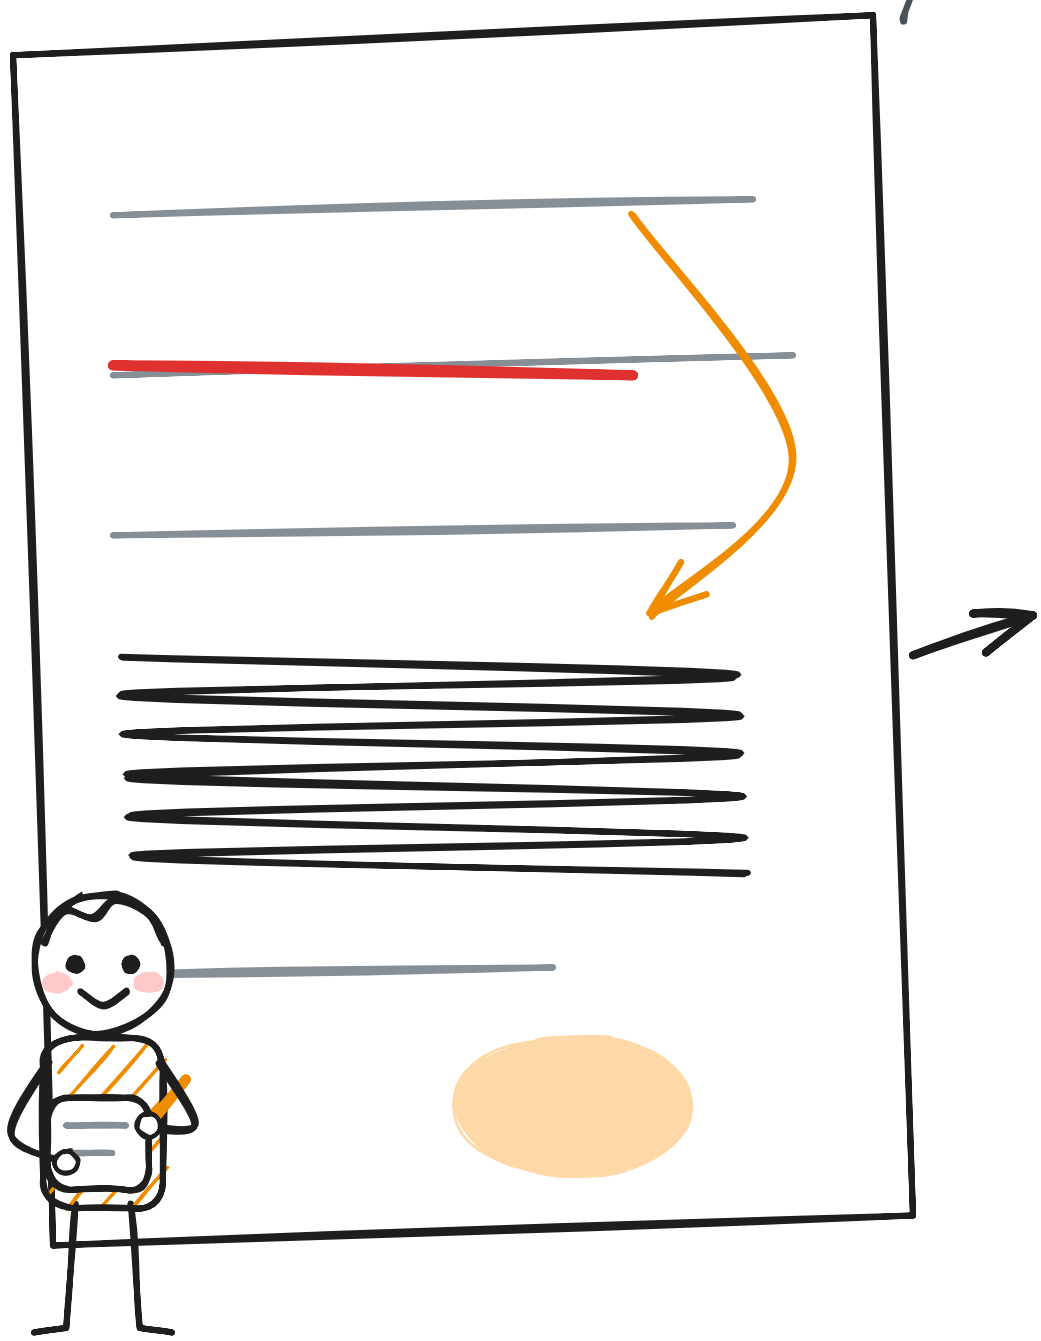

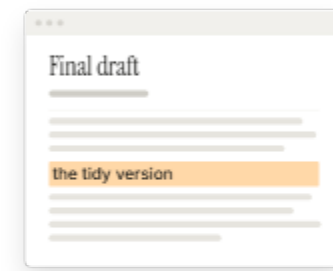

2

Write something badly

That's where you find out what you think.

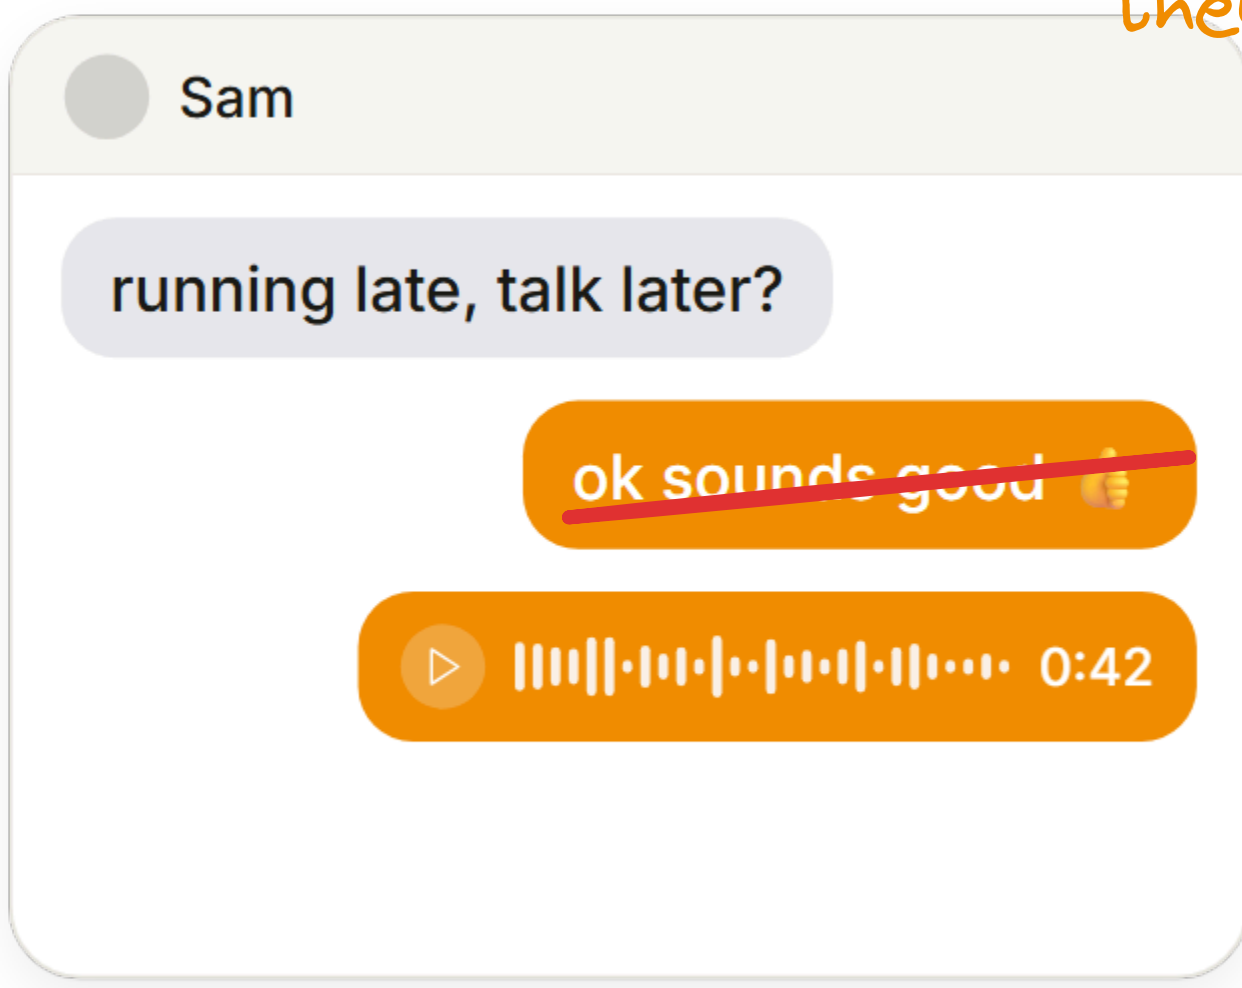

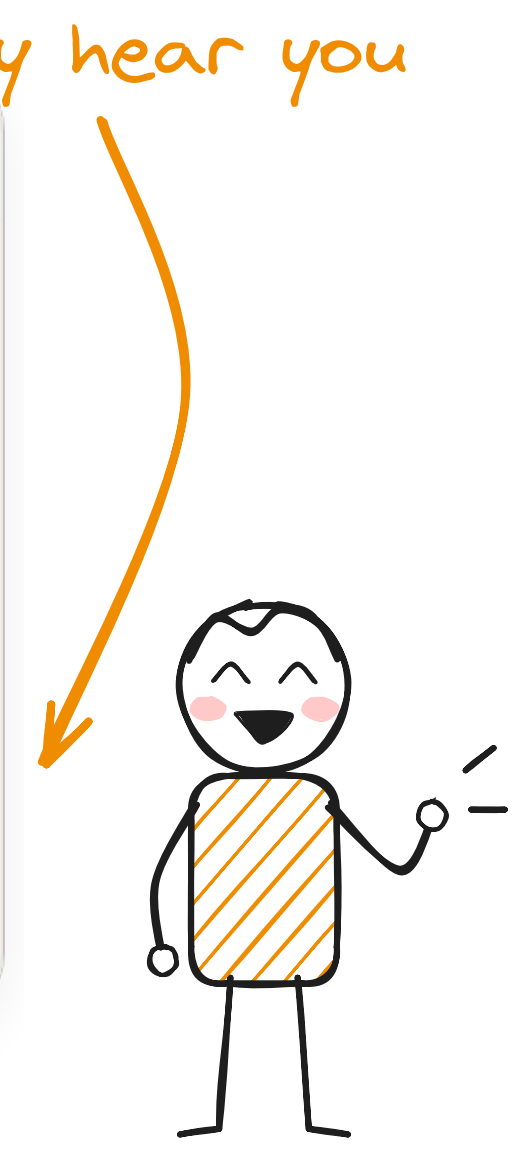

AI tidies it after

3

Send a voice note, not a text

They hear you. Not just your words.

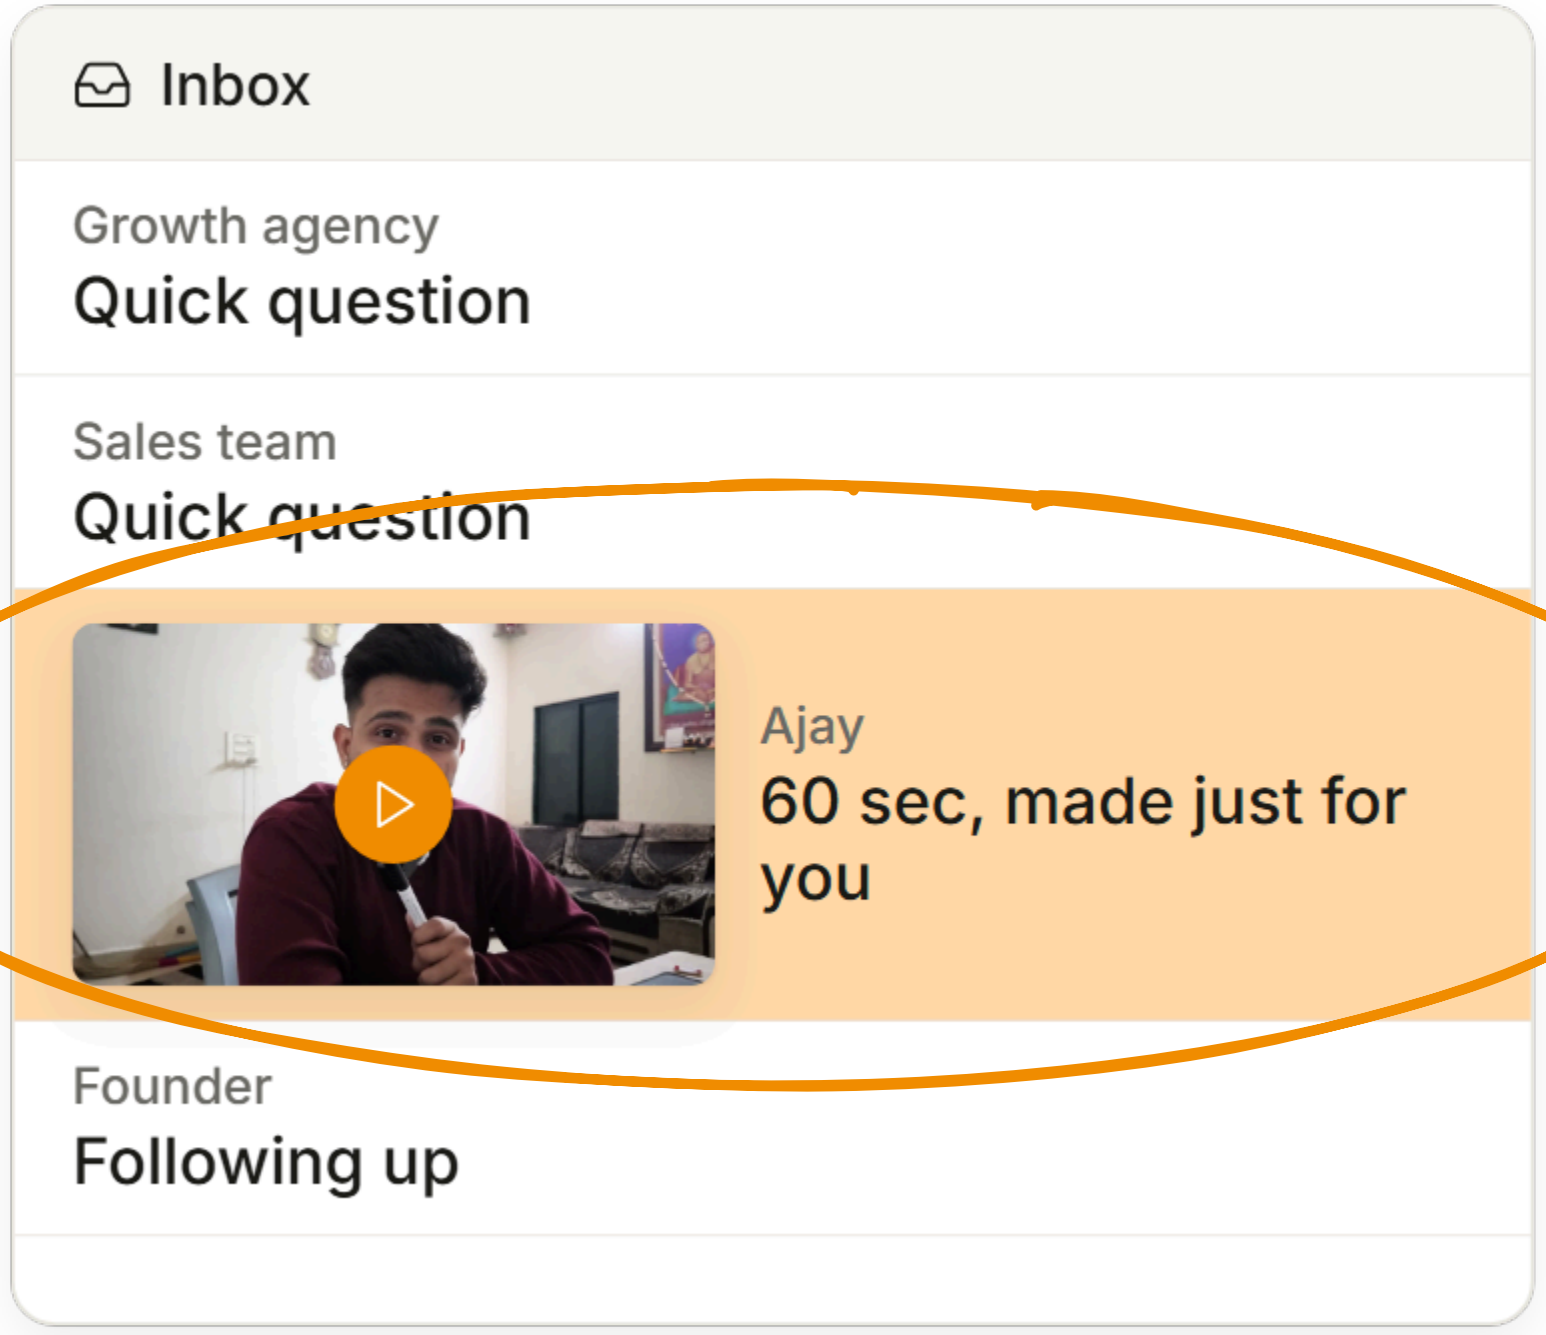

4

Send a Loom, not a cold email

A face beats a template.

5

Call someone who's done it

Ask what they learned the hard way.

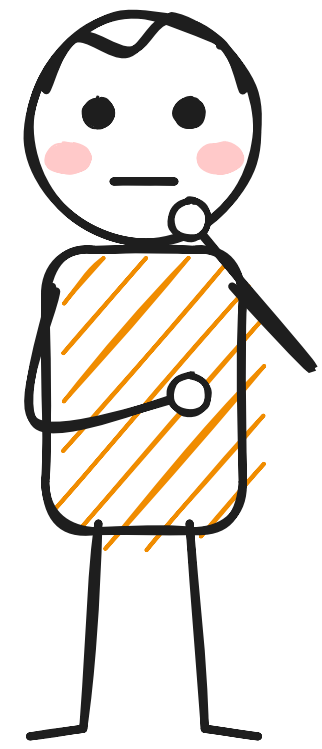

6

Sit with the problem first

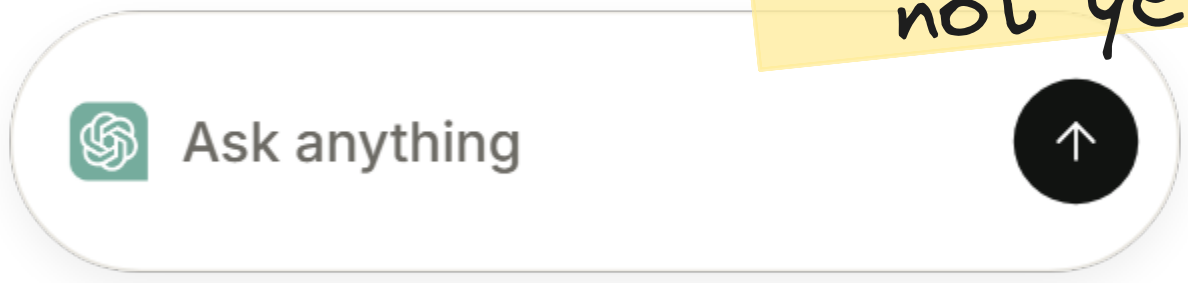

Give your own brain the first turn.

10 min, just you

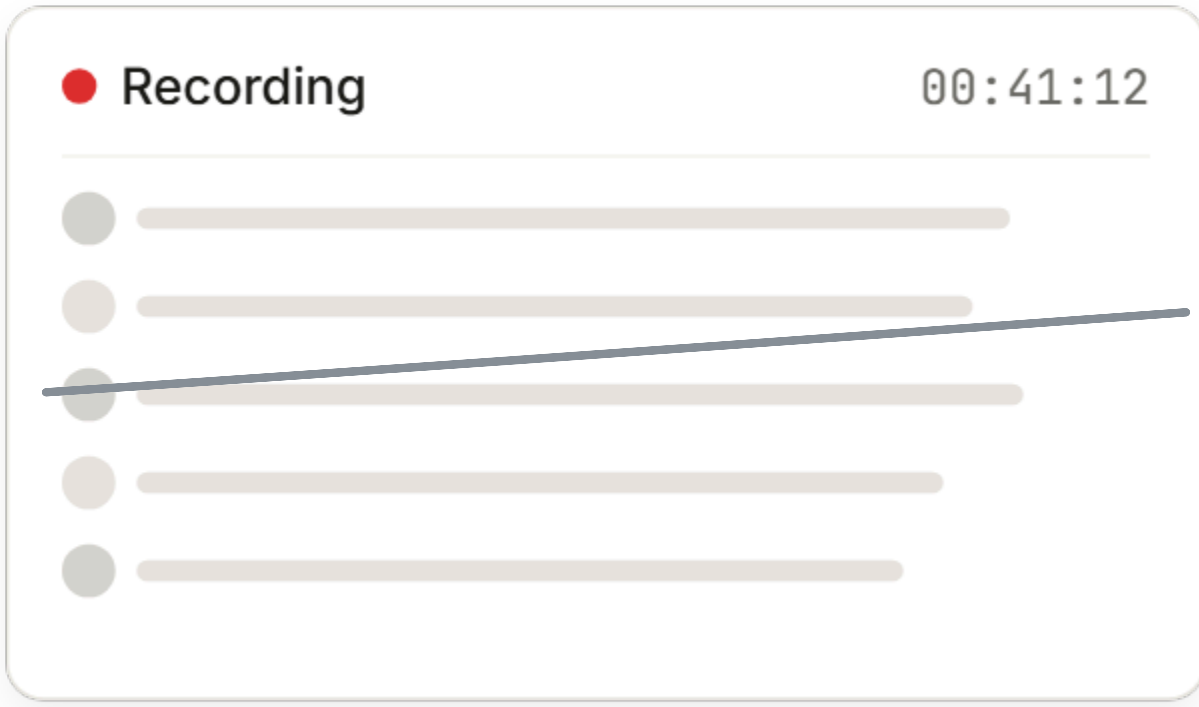

not yet

7

Take notes by hand

Even if AI is recording.

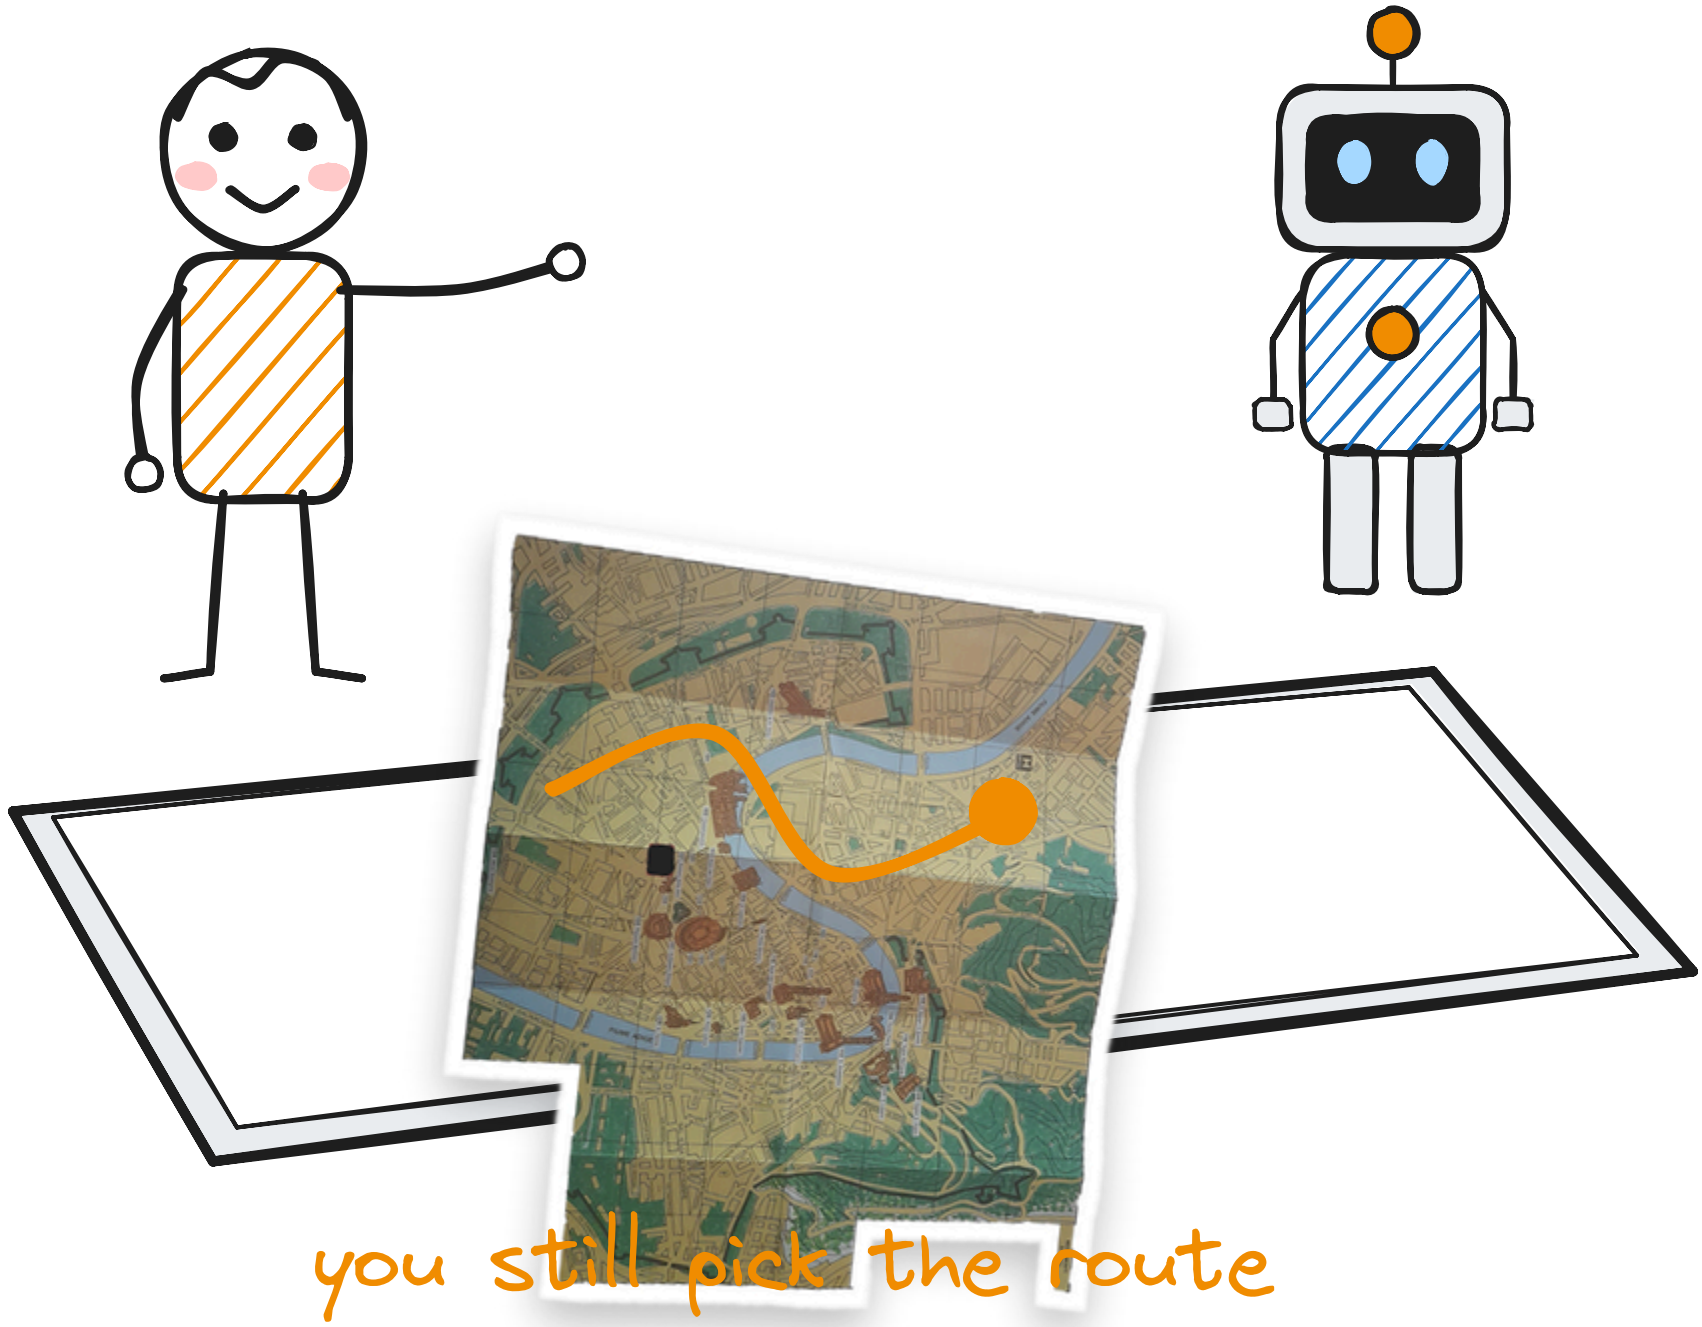

your own words stick

Use AI.
Just don't stop thinking.

you still pick the route

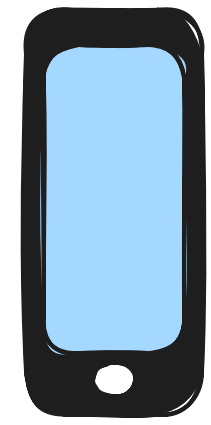

Which one will you try this week?

☐ read long

☐ write badly

☐ voice note

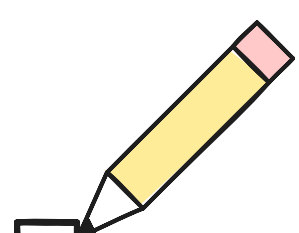

☐ send a Loom

☐ call someone

☐ sit with it

☐ notes by hand
